Cancer

Spiritual Causes for Cancer

Difficulty accessing our feelings because of repression or rejection can cause us to live in an emotionally overwhelmed state for years. This may have been infused into our lives from guilt, our family upbringing, heredity, or a traumatic experience which was never resolved. By subconsciously feeding these erroneous thoughts, we cannot but nurture the wounds of things gone wrong because of how we view ourselves. In many cases, it causes us to overwork to the point of neglecting ourselves and burying our feelings. Cancer is spiritually caused from an unidentified rejection of God's love. Unless the feelings of guilt and inner rage are addressed and brought to light, the inability to cope can impair the immune system.

Each of us must find our own voice to address these unresolved emotions. Knowing God within ourselves and talking with Him can bring an illuminating light that provides an inner comfort. He can help us discern erroneous ideas that we may have about ourselves and make a separation from them so that we do not claim this false identity as our own. We can seek help from friends, family or a counsellor. Sometimes, conveying how we really feel can shed light to help us identify these damaging thoughts so that we can resolve them. Knowing the truth behind it all can stabilize our minds and bodies and give us a sense of self-worth, which will restore healing love back into our lives.

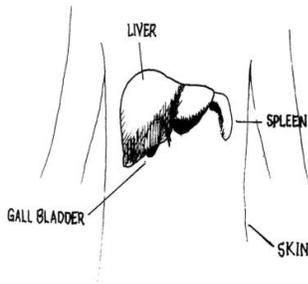

The rejection of a healthy self-love can inundate our thoughts and emotions with continual animosity which overwhelms and compromises the immune system like a silent thief. Habitual harboring of repressed thoughts and feelings can eventuate into a mass of unregulated and uncompromising cell growth, resulting in cancerous tumors. These tumors rob the life of God from other cells in our bodies. When we refuse to give love or forgive others because of how we feel about ourselves, it weakens the immune system.

It is so important to love ourselves enough to examine our feelings in order to resolve the animosities that are present in our lives.

“If you are angry, don't sin by nursing your grudge.
Don't let the sun go down with you still angry—get over it quickly; for when you are angry you give a mighty foothold to the devil.”<sup>1</sup>

This foothold can compromise our system when we maintain inner anger or have made a lifestyle of belittling ourselves or others. The body systems were not designed to live under the pressure of thoughts and feelings that habitually prevent us from receiving or giving love in our lives .

Antidotes for Cancer

Addressing our grudges is one way to free ourselves. Grudges are a separate entity from us, and we should treat them as such. The Word of The Lord and The Spirit of The Lord asks, “What do grudges and hatreds and revenges do? They imprison us. We are being tormented because we hate ourselves. I want you to learn to love yourself. Not the evil self in you but the God in you. So many of us are unaware how much help we need, and we refuse the help God chooses to give us. It is human nature to like people who like you. It is human nature to hate people who hate you. It is divine love from God to love people who hate you and to love people who love you.”<sup>iii</sup>

When we hate one another, we really hate the part of ourselves that they remind us of. Come up with ways to set these animosities aside and take action to counteract these hatreds. We learn to love God and ourselves by making allowances for another’s faults, as they do for our own.

Determining which area of the body cancer begins to manifest in will tell us what areas of our lives the anger needs to be addressed. For example, if cancer is in the breast, we must examine how past behaviors have prevented us from nurturing the goodness and life of God within ourselves and others. This is because nurturing and comforting are what the breasts are for. If cancer is in the brain, we must examine how our mind is harboring thoughts of anger, which prevents us from being loving toward ourselves and others. If cancer is in the colon, we must examine our attachments to false ideas and emotions that we have believed to be true about ourselves or others but are actually false. This is because the job of the colon is to identify and separate the useless error or dross from our system. Instead, the error or dross has become our truth, especially about what we believe about ourselves.
